fast, effective short-term
and long-lasting relief

What can I do to treat my heartburn?

For mild or occasional heartburn, take an antacid to neutralize stomach acid and provide fast relief. If you are taking antacids two or more times a week for your heartburn symptoms, you may want to ask your doctor if an acid H2 blocker or proton pump inhibitor might be beneficial.¹

CONSTIPATION

iheartwags.com • photo credit: free stuff finder

short-term relief for a sluggish bowel

How can I relieve constipation?

Laxatives can help with short-term constipation. But for long-term digestive health a balanced diet, including fiber, is recommended. It's also helpful to drink one and a half to two quarts of water each day because it brings more water into the large intestine and the stool which can help prevent constipation.¹

REGULARITY
iheartwags.com • photo credit: free stuff finder

Supplements for bowel

Why is fiber important in my diet?

Fiber moves waste through the digestive tract—the small and large intestines (colon)—keeping you regular.¹

How do I get fiber into my diet?

Aim for 20 to 35 g/day. Eating foods like nuts and whole grains and adding a fiber supplement can help you reach your daily goal.¹

PROBIOTIC BALANCE

Probiotics to promote digestive health

How do probiotics help digestive health?

Taking probiotics, or "good" bacteria, may help rebalance the bacteria in your intestinal system that may have been affected by digestive problems or antibiotic use.¹
